

NEW, EASY TO USE DECAL MATERIAL

By George White

Dan Gee decided he wanted to add a bit of extra class to his Stahl Hi-Climber. While he was shopping at Office Depot, he spotted some stuff called "Clear Inkjet Window Decals." He thought that looked cool, so he bought some. Sure enough, it's great to work with. Simply print whatever image you want on the stuff and apply it. It's self-adhesive, so no muss with water-wrinkled tissue. He tested to see if dope overspray had any affect on it, and it didn't. Since the image is done with an ink jet, over-spraying with dope or Krylon seems a wise move. As you can see on the first photo, it looks great on Dan's Hi-Climber which he finished with high gloss dope. However, it won't stick to any finish which is not high gloss (ask how I found out!!) The second photo shows what it looks like on the sheet. It trims nicely and doesn't curl when you remove the backng. You might want to check this stuff out. It looks to be the same thickness as regular decal material. The stock number is 212-881.
