

PRAISE FOR EASY BUILT BALSA STRIP WOOD

By George White

For many years I've taken great pride in stripping my own wood for longerons etc. Last year, I bought some strip wood from the Easy Built folks while at Geneseo. After using that wood on some of my projects in the past few months, I'll no longer strip my wood if the size I need is available from Easy Built. Their wood is color coded by weight, which is a real time-saver. However the thing which really impresses me is that if the wood is advertised to be, say 3/32" square, it is exactly and uniformly that size. Sure makes building two fuselage sides on top of each other a lot more pleasant.
